Cpl. Perlewitz, 19, Killed in Action After Year's Duty

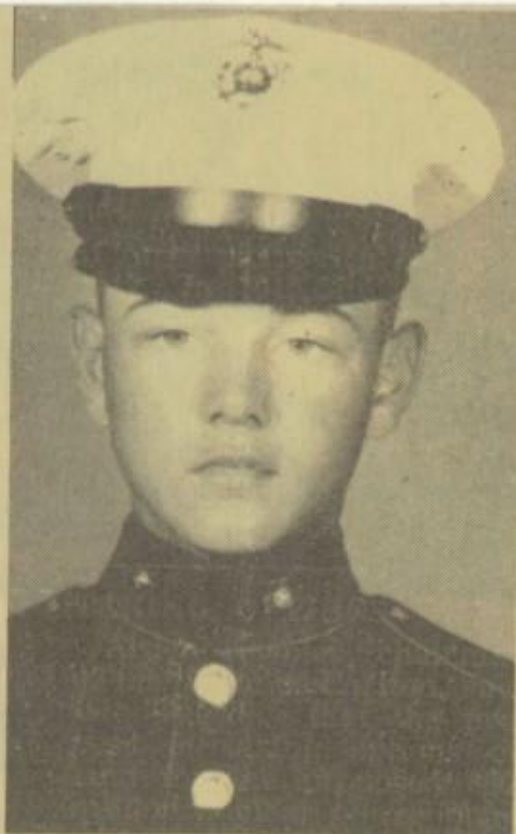

Marine Cpl. Steven D. Perlewitz, 19, was killed during weekend action in Vietnam. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Perlewitz, Algoma, were notified late Sunday afternoon.

The Algoma serviceman, one of an elite group of the scout and sniper section of the U.S. Marine Corps, had been in Vietnam since February, 1966.

In December he flew home on Christmas furlough, surprising his parents. After the 30-day leave, he volunteered for another six months of extended tour of duty.

According to information received by the parents Sunday, Cpl. Perlewitz died of fragmentation wounds to the body. The wounds were caused by a hostile explosive device and were suffered during an operation against enemy forces in the vicinity of Thua-Thien.

The body is being returned to Algoma for services and burial. The Haucke funeral home is in charge of local arrangements. There will be services in St. Paul's Lutheran church, where the Rev. A. A. Schabow will officiate, with burial in the Evergreens. Military rites will be conducted at the cemetery. Cpl. Perlewitz was a member of Hostak-Novak VFW post 7152. His father is also a member of this VFW post and his mother is active in the auxiliary.

Enlisted After Graduation

Cpl. Perlewitz was also a member of the Algoma Youth club and the Junior Rifle association. He was an excellent marksman.

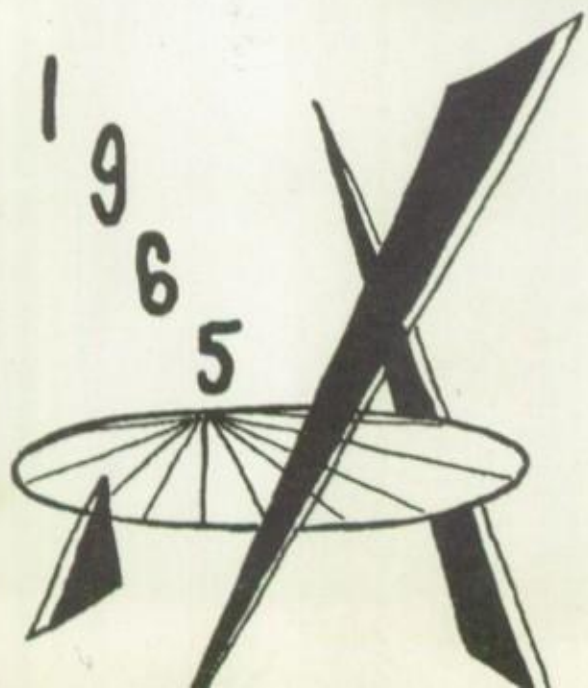

Born at Algoma June 27, 1947, Cpl. Perlewitz graduated from St. Paul's Lutheran school and Algoma High school. In July, 1965, one month after graduating from high school, he enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps. He took boot training at San Diego, Calif., and advanced training at Camp Pendleton, Calif. He was in Okinawa before going to Vietnam a year ago.

Marine records show that Perlewitz was one of 67 promoted to private first class while in basic training. He was recently advanced to corporal.

Survivors are his parents; two brothers, Nicholas and Jeffrey, at home; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. W. J. Moegenburg, and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Martin Perlewitz, both of Algoma. The corporal's mother is the former June Moegenberg.

Cpl. Perlewitz is Algoma's first fatality of the war in Vietnam and Kewaunee county's second.

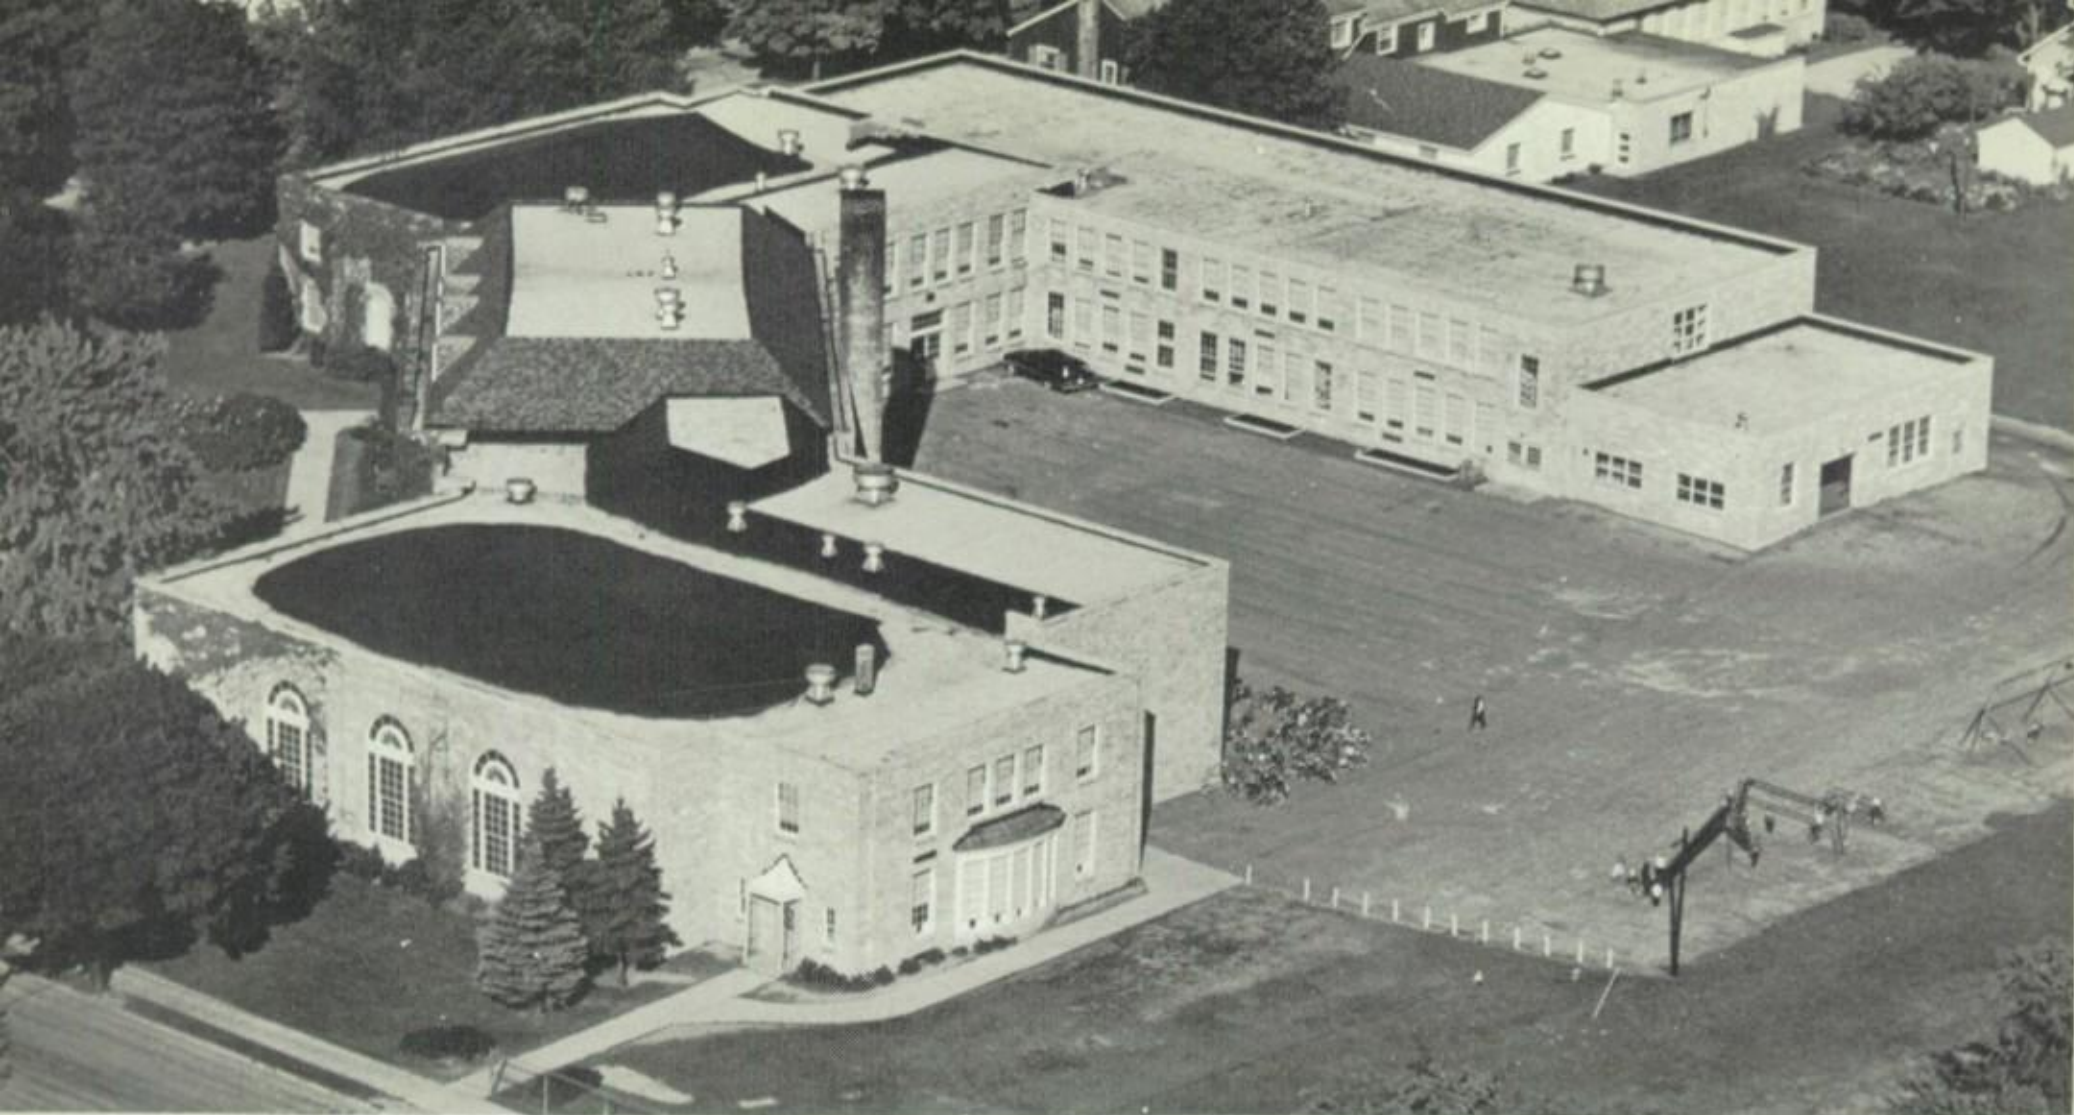

Seems incredible but they say Jack Rush was there.

FOREWORD

"Time is of the essence" in this rapidly changing world. A new feature of this school year is the seven period day, which gives students an opportunity to broaden their academic programs and prepare themselves for the challenging future.

Symbols of time, which are shown in art motifs, depict the importance and value being placed on the wise use of TIME--the theme of this 1965 volume of the "Scroll."

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Scholarship, leadership, character, and service are the qualities with which an individual must be endowed in order that he might be asked to become a member of the National Honor Society.

The local chapter is composed of fourteen students of Algoma High School who have attained the desired specifications both in scholastic achievement and in extra-curricular activities.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY--STANDING: N. Dart, S. Ackerman, R. Bero, G. Heidmann, T. De Meuse, R. Nesemann, L. Hall, K. Kirchman. SEATED: Mr. Allen, J. Mraz, J. Phillips, M. Bero, K. Kohlbeck, M. E. Molle, Mr. Sheffy.

Superintendent's Message

Time Marches On

Just as the grains of sand silently but crudely measured time as they slowly filtered through the small neck of the hourglass in ages past, electrically operated time pieces now measure with near precision the seconds, the minutes, and the hours that make up our busy days and years. These seconds, minutes, and hours are ours to use but once as we would choose. The seconds, minutes, and hours that can create jewels of thought; that can produce masterpieces of art; that can build massive structures of stone, steel or glass; that can solve problems small or great; or that can be wasted in idleness, never to return again. These seconds, minutes, and hours that become more precious as we become older and more fully realize their great significance.

The four short years that the seniors have been with us have been made up of these precious seconds, minutes, and hours. Many seniors have used them well. Many have worked most diligently and have achieved commensurate with their ability to achieve. Some have shown marked growth and maturity and have developed the skills needed to prepare for professional or technical careers. Others have used the fleeting minutes to a lesser degree and have achieved less.

Time and Tide Wait for No Man

The time of reckoning has come. The grades on the report card or on the school records are part of that reckoning. A further measure of accomplishment will be how well the high school graduate does in college, how well he does in a trade school, or how well he fares in his chosen job or career. The true measure, however, will be the kind of a citizen he becomes and the contribution he makes to his family, to his community, and to his nation.

Board of Education

Have you ever thought of the importance of the Board of Education in the life of the school? With the coming of the unified school district and the addition of two new members to the Board, the rural areas are now assured of representation in school affairs.

We, the Class of 1965, wish to sincerely thank each individual member for his guidance in directing our school administration, maintaining high standards, and adjusting the curriculum to changing needs.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council offers an opportunity for the students to realize, through experience, the privileges and responsibilities of a democracy. A project during the 1964 Presidential Campaign was an all-school election, directed by Mr. Allen, and carried out through the social studies classes.

Officers of Student Council were R. Antonneau, President; R. Martens, Vice-President; and P. Pfile, Secretary-Treasurer.

DEDICATION

The Senior Class owes a debt of gratitude to the faculty for they have helped to guide and train us to become useful members of society. The teachers have dedicated their time and effort to help us learn the true meaning of responsibility and prepare us for the future.

We, the class of '65, wish to take this opportunity to give special recognition to each member of the faculty and to say "THANKS" in this small manner.

Time for a Glance in Retrospect

To the seniors TIME has a special significance. As commencement exercises reach a finality, there is a note of anguish when the doors close and friends say farewell. But time does not stand still, and the graduates move on to new opportunities in the future. Staff members of the 1965 "Scroll" hope there will be found in this yearbook many fond memories to preserve for its readers.

SCHOOL SONG

It's your school and it's my school,
 We'll fight to bring it fame
 And to show we have the spirit,
 We'll be at every game.

We fight fair and we play square
 And proudly we confess
 The man who cowers at defeat
 Is not in A.H.S.

Algoma native involved in discovery of imprinted gene on chromosome 19

Algoma native Randy Jirtle, a professor of radiation oncology at Duke University, was the principal investigator on a team of scientists who discovered an imprinted gene on human chromosome 19, which may prove key in combatting certain cancers.

The Peg3 gene is significant because it defies the classic laws of inheritance, according to a Jan. 10 article in The Chronicle, a newspaper affiliated with Duke University, located in Durham, N.C.

An imprinted gene is expressed depending on whether it's been inherited from the mother or the father. This contradicts Gregor Mendel's centuries-old model of inheritance, where phenotype is regulated solely by the dominance or recessiveness of alleles, the article indicated.

RANDY JIRTLE

Jirtle, the son of Nettie Jirtle and the late Rodger Jirtle, Algoma, said that imprinted genes are more susceptible to a loss of function than normal genes because they only have one working copy of the allele.

"So you need only one 'hit,' one mutation, to knock them out," Jirtle was quoted as saying.

The study of the work by Jirtle, Susan Murphy, also from

Duke, and Andrew Wylie, from Cheshire, England, was also published in the Jan. 1 issue of "Genomics Magazine," under the title, "Imprinting of Peg3, the Human Homologue of a Mouse Gene Involved in Nurturing Behavior."

Murphy, the lead author of the study, said that some types of cancer have been linked with defects in the region of chromosome 19, where the imprinted gene has been located.

So, the Peg3 gene, or some other still-undiscovered imprinted gene like it on chromosome 19, may be involved in cancer, Murphy said.

However, since no one had reported the existence of imprinted genes in this chromosome before, research has not been done to either prove or disprove the possibility, she said.

While previous studies have located as many as 40 imprinted genes on chromosomes 7, 11 and 15, this is the first time an imprinted gene has been found on chromosome 19.

"(Imprinted genes) are found in clusters," Jirtle said. "Finding imprinted genes is like finding a mushroom—when you find one, you know you'll find more."

The researchers indicated they plan to seek out more imprinted genes on chromosome 19 as well as the remainder of the human genome.

The Peg3 gene has been found to play a role in cellular and behavioral functions such as growth and maternal nurturing.

Female mice inheriting a faulty copy of this gene from their fathers were reported to have serious nurturing shortcomings, and their offspring died as a result.

The article said while the researchers were very careful about jumping to any premature conclusions, they did point out that if the function of the Peg3 gene in mice and humans is similar, these combined findings may indicate a relationship between genetic inheritance and nurturing behavior of humans.

Randy Jirtle and his wife, Nancy, have two children and live in Durham, N.C.
